"HANG MET OH, NO!"

Bill Downs Says He'll Be Hanged if They Hang Him.

Bill Downs is a desperate negro. In fact he is in ho position to be otherise, for he is under sentence of death for killing a woman in cold blood,

Bill will undoubtedly hang. But he has a perfect herror of facing his sins by means of a rope, and hence he is raising a big kick at his quarters in he is raising a big kick at me quarter.

Norfolk, and stoutly maintains that he will not hang. Bill has the worst end of the argument, however, for the strong hand of the law is against him, and when City Sergeant Lawler, of Norwhen City Sergeant Lawler, of Nor-folk, who came to Richmond to get points and other things from Major Lynn, of the penitentiary, returns to the city by the sea, poor Bill will; find that he must forsooth take the punish-ment prescribed by those who sat in lot of heavy chains, manacles, and similar objects, and he will endeavor to convince Bill that it is folly for him further to argue aginst fate.

The fact is that Bill, in his desperation, has positively declined to be hung. He longs to be shot, for instance, or, he does not object to being clubbed to death, but to die by the rope, horrors? He has es-ablished a barricade in his apartments it the Norfelk jail, and no one dare go within reach. He courts death, but not w the rope. Mr. P. J. Morris, counsel for Charlie Mr. P. J. Morris, counsel for Charlle Williams, another negro, who murdered a man named Best, on a schooler off Norfolk, will also hang at the same time Bill: pays the penalty. Williams, however, has accepted the situation, and calmly awaits the result; of efforts being made by Mr. Morris before the Surveys Court to secure him a new trail.

Relics for the Museum.

A valuable collection of relics has been presented to the North Carolina room in the Confederate Museum by Mrs. Armistead Jones, of Raleigh, N. C. All the relics belonged to Mrs. Jones' father, the late General L. O'B. Branch, and they consist of the General's pistol and bioister, original orders from General T. J. Jackson to General Branch, a beautiful gauntlet, with the North Carolina General's name in full stamped upon it, a cartridge-box, also bearing General Branch's name; and some bullets brought from the battle-field of Sharpsburg. The cartridge-box and the bullets were found in the General's army chest.

Judge Schenck, of Greensboro, N. C., has recently presented to the room a fine picture of himself, and one of Governor Vance.
